

The
CARDINAL
1939

Foreword

THE THEME of the New York State World's Fair is "a happier way of American living through a recognition of the interdependence of men, and the building of a better world of tomorrow with the tools of today." For three years Plattsburgh State Normal has supplied us with the tools. When the world of tomorrow finally becomes the present, we hope that some of us will have used these tools to make outstanding contributions. The CARDINAL of 1939 attempts to reflect the final achievements of our class in anticipation of the professional world of tomorrow.

Dedication

THERE IS no more sacred trust than the shaping of an individual's life so that his abilities may be properly directed for the benefit of all mankind. It is a task which can be accomplished by a teacher who loves children, who has vision, and who is willing to give whole-heartedly of her self.

Miss Charlotte E. Chase is such a teacher. She has given thirty-two years of loyal and efficient service to Plattsburgh State Normal School. We, the Class of 1939, dedicate this twenty-fifth volume of the CARDINAL to her in the hope that it will express the love and the respect that we have for her as a teacher and as a friend.

Reply to Dedication

Class of 1939—

Only as you live to experience, as I have, the wonderful privilege of working with and for children and young people, will you fully appreciate my depth of feeling, to be honored by such a tribute as you have bestowed upon me. While I sincerely feel it is not deserved, it is with gratitude and deep appreciation that I accept this honor, a most friendly and kindly gesture.

In no "World of Tomorrow" could I possibly anticipate any greater happiness than that already enjoyed in my years of the past unless it be that memory. If all who teach can hold and carry with them the picture I take with me, it will be worth all the struggle and hardships which accompany any worthwhile undertaking.

In congratulating you upon your present achievements may I also extend my whole-hearted wish for your future contentment and success.

CHARLOTTE E. CHASE.

Appreciations

"Who seeks for aid

Must show how service sought can be repaid"

It is the regret of the class of 1939 that we cannot more fully repay the services rendered to us during our three years at Plattsburgh State Normal School. Our only way of indicating our true feelings is to express a few insufficient words of appreciation.

There have been several people who have been most kind in granting us their time, giving us needed advice, and sharing with us their richer experiences. Their careful guidance has helped us to overcome many of our difficulties. It is to these people that we extend our sincere appreciation. To that end we have devoted the next few pages in our yearbook. It is our wish that these people may always have the happiness they so richly deserve.

"Education of tomorrow must give the student a philosophy of life that will give meaning to existence and those good moral and intellectual habits which will put support behind character and hope under endeavor."

We feel that Doctor Ward already has implanted within us a philosophy which if prevalently practiced would be adequate to the task of bringing about a more civilized, peaceful and intelligent world. As a man of democratic vision, he feels that the development of an individual's abilities for his own happiness and for the benefit of all will produce, as a natural outgrowth, a better society.

The practical application of his philosophy is evidenced in the Normal School by the opportunity which the students have of playing an active part in the life of the school. He holds that if a person is to be an efficient teacher he must be well trained in the activities that will be required of him in the field; if he is to live and help others to live in a democratic state it is but reasonable that he must learn of the responsibilities that will be his.

The ideals which Doctor Ward has given to the class of 1939 will serve us well when we become the teachers of tomorrow.

Domes of Normal

*When o'er the western slopes the day-star's fading light
Bedecks the heavenly span in spectral grandeur bright,
There stands within our view, reflected in the west,
The pigeoned towers of Normal!
The dormered caves of Normal!
The storied lights of Normal, where Learning's banners rest.*

*Dark shades the vision clouds; destruction blinds our eyes;
All 'round our sacred place, a fiendish sacrifice,
The work of years, where Art and Wisdom blessed us all,
Sinks with the spires of Normal!
The crumbling walls of Normal!
Our ivy cloistered Normal, in one vast funeral pall.*

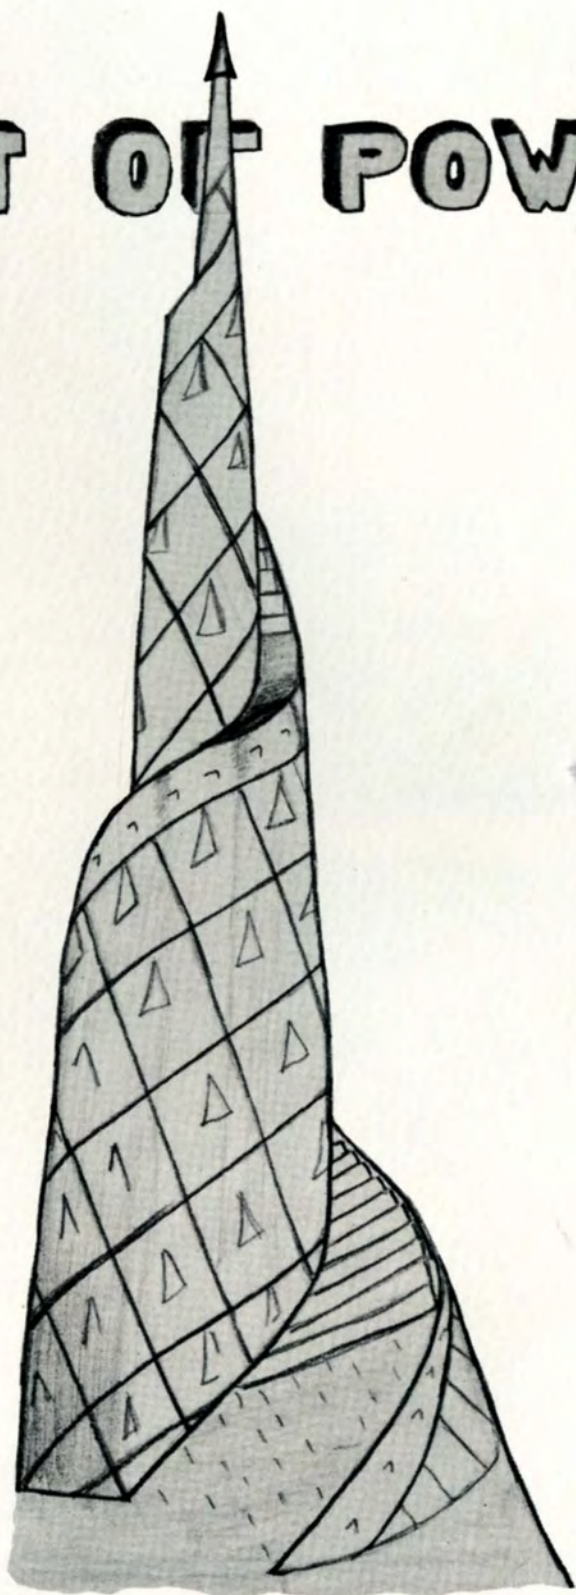

*But on the placid face of Champlain's sapphire bay
Faint gleams of struggling light announce another day!
They gleam! The vision grows! It fills the blinded eye,
The risen domes of Normal!
The burnished domes of Normal!
The living domes of Normal, against the western sky.*

*Then ban the black despair that threatens to break the heart
When proud-apparelled works of hand and mind depart;
New courage take and on! You'll build again more vast,
As were the domes of Normal!
The sturdy domes of Normal!
The rock-ribbed domes of Normal rebuilt from the Blast.*

The House of Delegates is the policy-forming group for the student body of Plattsburgh State Normal School. Each class and each extra-class activity sends at least one delegate and an alternate to the House. The members feel that this has been one of the most successful years in the history of this democratic organization.

The major accomplishment of the House this year was the formation and adoption of a Constitution which was the result of the expressed needs of the House over a period of years.

Youth's Creed

*They speak—these scholars in their sombre dress
And with the cynic's smile on lips pale gray
For want of manly blood they boldly say
That love must pass; it lacks the tenderness
And beauty that we hoped it could possess;
It is the jest that Nature wills to play
Upon our youthful hearts, and dies away
When Beauty, with the mounting years, is less.*

*But, Love, this evening as I stood with you
Watching the western skies of golden hue
Proclaim in mystic majesty and power
The passing of the day's most glorious hour,
Your heart spoke out to mine in accent sage:
"Beauty and love shall long outlive their age."*

*Seniors stand together,
All through Normal's years;
Friends and pals forever,
Sharing all our joys and all our tears;
Though our path's a hard one,
We will conquer yet;
Though we have our troubles here,
Plattsburgh Normal, never fear:
We will win, you bet!*

*Through our years at Normal
Silver and the blue,
They and our own motto,
They will both be there to see us through.
And at Plattsburgh Normal
May there ever shine
Scholarship and sportsmanship,
Taking them on every trip,
Class of thirty-nine.*

Meditations on a White Birch

The sun has sunk behind the tree tops and the first sweet coolness of twilight has taken its place. The white birches at the end of our street are fast becoming enveloped in the mist. White birch trees have always held a singular attraction for me. Something about their slender, young daintiness reminds me of a mother who looks at her first-born child—tender yet joyous, reverent yet half-fearful. A white birch against the rose of a morning sky or outlined by the deeper, fuller tints of the evening sky is a picture one can never forget. It is difficult not to believe that fairies played around its whiteness just before we awakened, and perhaps danced merrily to the tune its leaves made as the wind played upon them; and then, just as the first faint light of dawn appeared, they solemnly and sweetly made a covenant with their queen, not to appear until she flashed her signal, the evening star, to them.

A white birch in the moonlight brings back all the old days of romance and chivalry "when knighthood was in flower." I am sure that the young birch mourned over the lovers who said good-bye 'neath its silvery shelter and that the old birch nodded with complacency when the knight came back to claim his lady.

A clump of white birches high on a hill seems unattainable—like the whiteness and purity of vision which many of us strive for so long and patiently—and often vainly.

The birds seem to sing more softly and there is a hushed expectancy about their voices as, at this time in the evening, they gather closer to the birch; the tree seems to gain more confidence, and as the night mist enfolds it, seems to stand straighter and even more gracefully than before.

I like to think of a young birch as a dryad who was so pure and good and loved her tree companions so well that the King of the forest told her she might become one of them, and by her whiteness and gracefulness be known all through the woodlands as a symbol of purity and truth.

It is getting dark now. The white birches are barely discernible from the distance. If I were to walk closer, they would become whiter and clearer even as truth and purity become whiter and clearer as we stumble through the darkness toward them.

MAIZIE GRAY.

Eyes of the Sea

*Oft have I gazed across the sea
When all was still, and over me
Was bent the cloudless morning sky—
Between two blues, the one was high
Unto the Sun-god's very throne;
The other deep, and yet it shone
With equal splendor. And I thought;
A mighty Power both has wrought,
That each should fade into the other
As a soft wind mingles with its brother;
For not even may the human eye
Discern wherein begins the sky
And ends that deep expanse of blue.
Long did I watch: the stillness grew
Until the beauty of the sea
Reached out and laid its claim on me.*

*I gazed into her azure eyes
And saw the beauty of the skies
Mingled with stillness of the sea.
Yet far more fair they seem to me—
Pure as the Sun-god's holy light
Strong with the ocean's mystic might,
Those eyes caught mine, and I could feel
Their strength serenely o'er me steal.*

A Sonnet to the Moods

*The countless trifles of this stifled age
Are ruthless, seeking to create despair;
Discomfort overwhelms us unaware
From out the corners of a mind's taut cage.
There are happy moments when we feel
Elated and above our troubles soar
Away from moods that only time can heal,
That they return to us no more.
Solution to this everlasting crime?
Laugh you the while, forgetting care and grief;
Let good cheer reign throughout eternal time;
Away with fear of ruin on the reef
Of piled up cares. Now guard your only prime
From sorrows reaching heights beyond belief.*

Staff Purpose

The members of the 1939 CARDINAL Staff, as a small part of the senior class, have striven to uphold the ideals of cooperation and of efficiency that the class has manifested in all of its undertakings.

It has been our aim to perpetuate within the covers of this book the most cherished memories of our final year at Plattsburgh State Normal School so that in the future we may relive the happy hours that we have spent within its portals.

JUNIORS

Junior Class

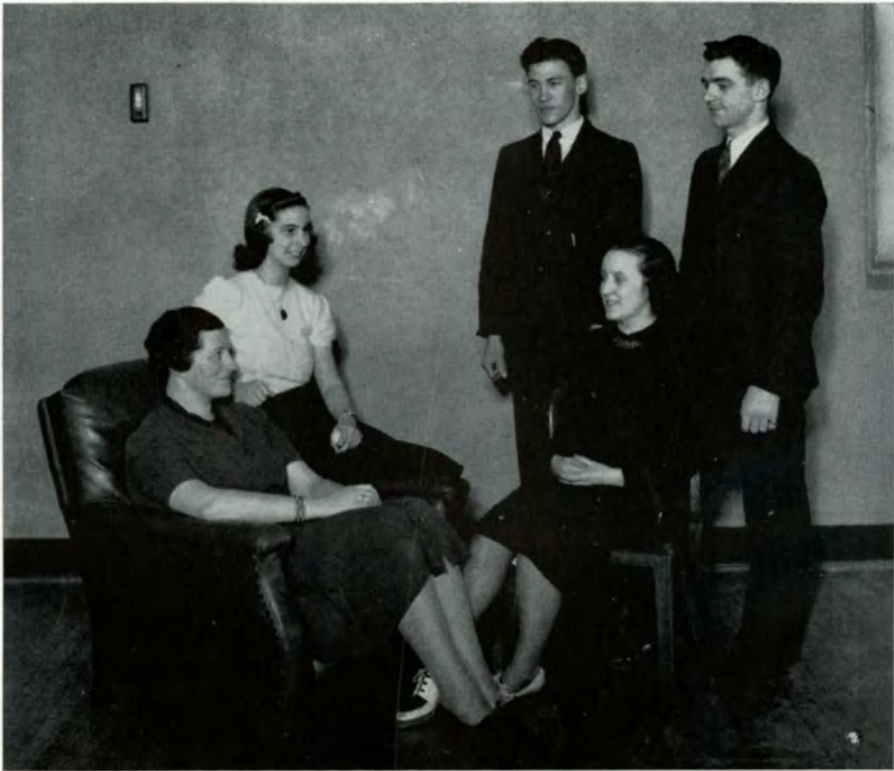

N—ew and greater tasks for the class this year. The first of these was helping our Freshman sisters and brothers become orientated. Meeting them at trains, helping them register, giving them welcoming picnics, teas, and parties occupied our time for the first two weeks of school.

O—ur Assembly program was a problem. Something different and something new. When the curtains on the stage were finally opened on that important day, a huge picture frame, with real people posing, portrayed many of our favorite songs as they might be illustrated in some old album.

T—reating ourselves to a sleigh ride, with hot cocoa and sandwiches at school to climax the evening's fun, broke the monotonous stretch between Christmas and Easter.

E—vent of events, the Junior Prom! Ultra-modern rocks, waterfalls, and rockets created an atmosphere of unreality increased by filmy, swaying evening gowns silhouetted against black suits.

S—eniors, we salute you and wish you luck as we "move up" to the ranks you are vacating. We hope our Senior year will be as successful as this year has been, and we take this opportunity to express our appreciation to Miss Ruth Woodward, our adviser, for her share in making it so.

Junior Class Song

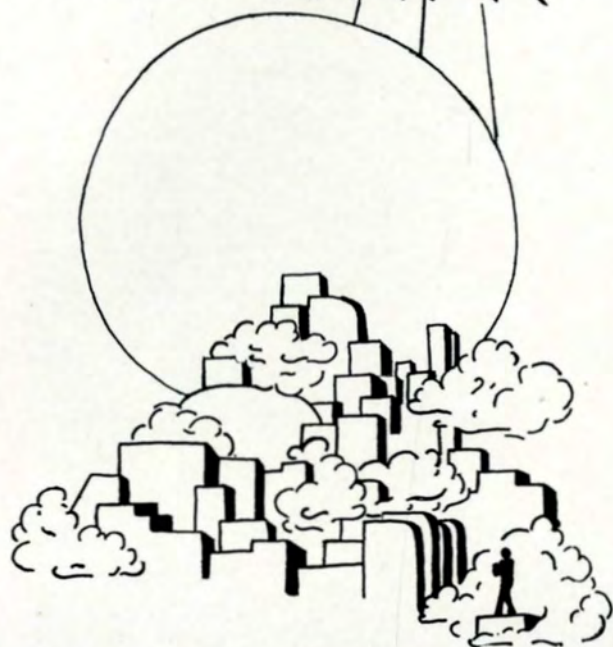

*Normal dear, we come to thee to learn;
For thy strength and guidance we all yearn.
Guide, oh guide us on to heights unknown,
May our lights as brightly shine as thine have shone.
Keep us calm throughout the changing years;
Help us conquer evil, banish fears;
And throughout life may thy treasured thoughts
Help us teach to others lessons thou hast taught.*

CHORUS

*Hail to thee our Alma Mater;
Love and loyalty we bring.
Juniors honor thee forever,
And thy praises may we always sing.*

*As we Juniors move to Senior lines,
Joy and gladness fill our hearts and minds.
Make us strong to face the coming year
That we may do honor to thee, Normal dear.
Singing as we travel on our way,
May we cherish thee from day to day,
Telling others of thy loving care,
Of thy wondrous power and thy beauty rare.*

FRESHMEN

Highlights of Freshman Year

May—Begin! Stop! "Will the last one in the row please bring the papers forward?"

Thus passed the eventful day while we took the admission examinations.

June—High School graduation!

July—Anxiously and hopefully waiting to hear the results of the Normal School examinations!

August—Accepted! Letters of welcome from our Junior brothers and sisters. Buying clothes for school and getting our trunks ready.

September—Leaving home and parents for the first time. Registration Day—the joy of meeting some one whom we knew would take care of us and introduce us to upperclassmen. A tea and a picnic. The Juniors are giving us a party so that we may get better acquainted. Although we look at each other a little doubtfully, we are beginning to develop that feeling which pervades and unites a group—class spirit.

October—Starting to settle down and really study.

November—Class elections. New responsibilities for those chosen to lead the class. Home for the first time since September. A well-earned vacation.

December—Sorority rushing—the Christmas Week program, and again home for a longer vacation.

January—Back to face the ordeal of Mid-years. Earnest resolutions to settle down and do intensive work—well, as intensive as the average Freshman can do.

February—The first big event of the season, the Freshman Ball. We are now among the more accomplished hosts and hostesses. The gymnasium transformed into a veritable fairyland, with snow-capped mountains, a star-lit sky, and a Swiss Chalet. A huge success!

March—A long month of hard work with the monotony broken by a basketball dance and an All-School Supper.

April—Easter vacation! Time now to stop and relax—even show off our new clothes. Six weeks of school left to prepare for those June finals.

May—A year has rolled around since our entrance exams! Now we can look back with satisfaction upon a successful year. We still have ahead of us the Junior and Senior dances, Class Day—and three more happy years.

Freshman Class Song

*Dear Alma Mater, we sing your praise.
We shall be true through all our days.
We all adore your ivy wall,
Your campus pond, your towers tall.
The fun we have, the help we gain,
Our friendships rare will never wane
We'll cheer for all, we'll fight it through—
The Rust and Gold, the Class of '42.*

*At each year's ending, we'll take our place.
We have the pep; we'll set the pace.
We'll take the torch and hold it high
And watch its gleam spread o'er the sky.
We'll work to show that we're worth while
And do our bit with happy smile
Complete the tasks we start to do
The Rust and Gold, the Class of '42.*

Lamron started a "boom" year with the largest membership in the history of the club. Under a completely revised program a one-act play was given at each regular meeting entirely under student direction.

The club presented two assembly programs that were enthusiastically received by the entire student body. The members combined with the music organizations to present the "Candlelight Service" which has become a Christmas tradition in Plattsburgh. In addition to these and other profitable activities Lamron sponsored the "Kingsland Marionettes" an attraction that was pleasing to both the adult and student audiences.

Under the capable supervision of Mr. Hartman Lamron has completed a year that has provided ample opportunity for each of its members to gain practical experience in dramatic activity.

"Protect the right of freedom of the Press so that the cause of freedom may not perish from the earth."

The Press Club is responsible for the preparation and the publication of The Tower. Through this activity the Club tries to perform a two-fold function: To encourage students to do experimental writing of various types; and to publish a magazine which will be of interest to the student body. This year The Tower has carried departments of poetry, short stories, essays, biographies, book reviews, notes on campus activities and editorials. All material in the magazine is original, and with rare exceptions, is written by students. An added feature in recent issues has been the presentation of a few excellent original drawings done by students.

The only requirement for membership in the Club is activity based upon interest.

The sole purpose of the Astronomy Club is to provide those students who are interested in astronomical phenomena with a means of pleasantly obtaining information. The keen interest evidenced by the members caused this to be a very enjoyable year.

Again we used the Sky Magazine as our guide and found within its covers many interesting discussions and "quizzes."

Our activities consisted of star gazing, two social functions, a mock radio broadcast, and the use of slides, films, and lectures.

We are planning a series of radio broadcasts to be given over station WMFF. We hope to close the year by spending one entire night, from sunset to sunrise, "exploring the heavens" from the top of Whiteface Mountain.

It is the purpose of the Rural Club to promote the educational and social development of rural life. In carrying out the aim of this club we have had a successful year under the able direction of our faculty advisers, Miss Patterson and Mr. Moyer.

Our educational program has consisted of speakers who are engaged in work pertaining to rural life and county welfare, supplemented by discussions on rural problems.

These programs were each followed by a social hour.

The Men's Club, organized in 1934, exists primarily to assist the boys with their personal and professional problems. It is composed of the men of the faculty and of the student body.

This year, as in previous years, the club did much in supporting the basketball teams. We held a few social gatherings which were enjoyed by all. One was a "Pot Luck" supper held in December. At this gathering, community singing, discussions, boxing and wrestling were enjoyed. Plans are now under way for an interesting assembly program which is to consist of a debate on current problems.

The principal aim of the Art Club is to promote an interest in and an appreciation of art.

In November, the club made a trip to Montreal where the members visited the unique city of Westmont, the Art Museums, cathedrals, and churches.

One of the club's principal accomplishments has been the sponsoring of various exhibitions, mainly of Japanese prints, silk screen processes, and an exhibition of children's drawings in water color, crayon and fresco. As usual, the Art Club presented a colorful Valentine tea dance for the students and faculty members.

This club was organized in October, 1934. It installed the Browsing Corner in the library in 1937 and since that time has added several recent books to it.

The Parnassian Club has had a pleasant year and is looking forward to the future with a great deal of anticipation.

As one of the many college student clubs affiliated with the National Home Economics Association the Plattsburgh State Normal School Home Economics Club provides its members with professional contacts which may be continued after graduation.

The majority of the girls in the Home Economics department are members of this club. The club meets twice a month holding one business and one social meeting.

As a cooperative group, they strive to further an interest in Home Economics in Plattsburgh State Normal School and in the community.

In December in cooperation with the Men's Club it sponsored an all-school tea dance. The assembly program was a fashion show of spring styles. One of the projects for the year was the making of scrapbooks for the children's wards of the local hospitals.

The Chemistry Club, a newly-founded organization which meets once a month, seeks to stimulate an interest in chemistry, to investigate its modern trends, and to instill in its members the desire to become more familiar with our chemical world.

The activities of the group are limited somewhat by its small membership, but this year the club has successfully taken a field trip to the blast furnaces at Standish, and held a social gathering. "Music of the future will recover its spiritual and humanitarian meaning which today has been considerably lost."

The Orchestra has attempted to give to those students with instrumental talent an opportunity to become participants rather than listeners; and the large membership testifies to the success of this attempt. Music of the Masters, classical and modern, is in the repertoire of this group and is executed in masterly fashion.

The Orchestra participates in many activities such as the various concerts given in the nearby communities, the music supervisors' visit, and the National Music Week; and it is of valuable service on such occasions as the "Moving-Up Day" and Commencement exercises.

Because of the quality of its performances, the Orchestra has become an essential part of the musical program carried out by the school.

The Glee Club participated with other music organizations in rendering its services during Christmas week, music supervisors' "Visitation Day" and National Music Week. Visits to nearby communities to present concerts was also included in the schedule.

Participation in the annual music festival held at Lake Placid and a trip to Montreal for the purpose of broadcasting, completed the activities of this group.

Thus, the Mixed Chorus has completed one of the most successful seasons since its organization in 1926.

The Chorus participated in the traditional Candlelight Service during Christmas Week, and on other occasions, including the music supervisors' visit to the school and National Music Week.

This spring the Mixed Chorus was also participant in the various concerts given in the neighboring communities by the Plattsburgh State Normal School musical organizations. A trip to Lake Placid and participation in the annual music festival there, will officially terminate what has been a banner year in the annals of this organization's history.

Basketball

Six lettermen having graduated last year the November call for the 1938-39 season revealed a squad smaller than usual. With only seventeen men, our team combined determination, unity and a brand of sportsmanship to carry them effectively through their second year of intercollegiate basketball. Only two games were lost on the home court. The support given by the student body and by the community added just the right impetus to the Maroon attack. While the system of play gave little chance for individual brilliance, every man had his responsibility, and our athletes experienced that smooth-working unity which alone brings success.

"We are trying to produce citizens who are capable of achieving happiness and of making a contribution to the common good."

With the sound of voices and laughter echoing through the halls heralding the opening of our new school year the Agonian Sorority convened for its first meeting to plan the year's activities.

Our first social get-together was a game party in the gym. The next big event was a "Gay Nineties" rush party complete with Little Nell and True Blue Harold. When our rushing season ended we had sixteen acceptances to our sorority. This was climaxed by our pledge banquet at the Witherill and dance in the small gym, decorated in our colors. This closed with the ever-inspiring pledge ceremony at twelve o'clock. Perhaps our most noteworthy achievement of the year was our assembly program, "Mother Goose Goes to Normal," an original play in costume.

The year closes again with a formal banquet given for the seniors and the soft strains of our anthem die away for the summer.

THETA CHAPTER OF ALPHA DELTA

"When we look at our achievements of the past few years we can go on with our heads up and our hopes and courage high."

As the school year draws to a close we look back with happiness at the successful year we have had as members of the Theta Chapter of the Alpha Delta Sorority.

Our first great experience was getting acquainted with the freshmen and giving a rush party in their honor.

Early in the year we started plans for our assembly program. It was held in February and took the form of a February party in honor of the famous persons born in that month. Our program seemed to meet with the approval of the students and faculty.

In February we held our pledge banquet at the Witherill Hotel when twenty-one girls were pledged to Alpha Delta. Following the ceremony we joined the Clios in dancing at the Cumberland Hotel. During the two weeks following this event the pledges were initiated.

We are now looking forward to the Senior banquet and other social affairs that have been planned.

Delta Clio

"We are building the World of Tomorrow on the basis of security of individual life, understanding of human needs and increasing opportunity for creative expression of individual personality."

The regular semi-monthly meetings of the Clios during the past year have provided opportunity for the members to work and to enjoy social activities together.

These were outstanding events in the year's social program:

A party at the home of one of the members of the sorority opened the year.

The rush party in early December took the form of a nursery party. Clever costumes, original dramatizations and "Professor Quiz" furnished an hilarious evening.

The annual formal dinner dance was held at the Cumberland Hotel in honor of the pledges.

Finally, an initiation and supper party was held in March for the new Clios of 1939.

Delta Tau Chi

"Men will be compelled to learn they are each others keepers."

Delta Tau Chi has just concluded its thirteenth year as an active fraternity at Plattsburgh State Normal.

We have pledged ourselves, as members of Delta Tau Chi, to cooperate with all school activities carried on for the benefit of the student body. We are also pledged to foster student responsibility toward the administration of the school.

Our social calendar for the year consisted of smokers for our neophytes, the interfraternity dance, informal banquets, formal and informal initiation, and various social affairs following the meetings.

Plans are now in preparation for our annual spring banquet, which will complete a most successful and enjoyable year in the fellowship of Delta Tau Chi.

The Interfraternity Council is a body composed of three representatives from each sorority and fraternity in the school. Its purpose is to promote the interests of the organizations therein represented.

Rush began this year on November 28, and ended with the formal Interfraternity Dance on December 9. On February 18, the respective pledge banquets were held, with formal and informal initiation following in March.

In response to a sincere desire expressed by the faculty and student body, the House of Delegates sponsored an honorary scholastic fraternity in the Normal School. The preamble to the constitution drawn up by the House declares that it shall be the aim of the fraternity "to foster high standards of preparation for teaching, and to invite into the bonds of fellowship and distinction those who attain excellence of scholarship and distinction of achievement at Plattsburgh State Normal School." The society will invite to membership "such persons as exhibit commendable personal qualities, worthy educational ideals, sound scholarship and habitual diligence."

Active members are chosen from among those students who have completed the first semester of the Junior year and from Seniors. The membership is limited to twenty men and women of the student body of which number there will be at least seven Juniors. This membership is permanent. The society is inactive since its members already have a great deal of responsibility in other activities.

Pioneers! O Pioneers!

(Dedicated to the Musical Organizations of the State Teachers College, Plattsburgh, New York, Professor Lyndon R. Street, Director, and their Annual Music Week Festival)

*All the past we leave behind;
We take up the task eternal,
And the burden, and the lesson,
Conqu'ring, holding, daring, venturing,
So we go the unknown ways,
Pioneers! O Pioneers!*

*Not the delectations sweet
Not the riches safe and palling—
Not for us, not for us, not for us the tame enjoyment;
Never must you be divided
In our ranks you move united
In our ranks you move united
Pioneers! O Pioneers!*

*All the pulses of the world,
All the joyous, all the sorrowing,
They are of us, they are of us;
We today's procession heading
We the route for travel clearing
Pioneers! O Pioneers!*

*On and on the compact ranks
With accessions ever waiting,
We must never yield or falter
Through the battle, through defeat,
Through the battle, through defeat,
Moving yet and never stopping,
Moving yet and never stopping,
Moving yet and never stopping,
Pioneers! Pioneers! Pioneers!
O Pioneers! O Pioneers!*

The Dreamer

*If holding
Captive in his hands
The Future's silvery glass,
How much of Life
Would each man drink
From a goblet filled with the Past?*

Prayer

*Grant, Master Teacher, that my life
Shall be so utterly in harmony with thine,
That I shall never be denied
The benediction of a child's small hand in mine.*

*A flash of inspiration on a wind's breath blown
Is caught, released, recaptured,
Imprisoned as one's own.*

*A drifting thought, arrested on its sharp fleet flight,
Is held, examined, scrutinized,
Then defined by light.*
